UNIVERSITY CENTER REACHES OUT TO BUSINESS

Ray Chapman, director of the University Center (UC) at the University of Montana, says applications and formal inquiries are now being accepted for businesses interested in opening outlets in the UC. Plans call for the new sites, which will be the result of extensive renovation within the building, to be available in the fall of 1988.

Plans for the renovation have been underway for the past year. Davidson Kuhr Architects and Space Design Associates, both of Great Falls, are designing space for eight to 12 businesses. Some university services will also be relocated when the renovation is finished, including the box office, postal services, check cashing and the information desk.

Chapman says he is looking for businesses that are already established and will use the UC as a secondary business outlet. He recommends that businesses catering well to students, faculty and staff apply. He says examples include travel services, hair styling, automated banking, specialty foods and beverages, and quick copy outlets.
